

Walhalla Mayor Lamar Bailes was recently honored for his volunteer work with the Lt. Governor's Office on Aging Volunteer Ombudsman program by Lt. Governor Bauer and other state lawmakers in a ceremony at the State House in Columbia. April 23 through 29 is National Volunteer Week.

Gaffney residents Don and Carol Groezinger were recently honored for their volunteer work with the Lt. Governor's Office on Aging Volunteer Ombudsman program by Lt. Governor Bauer and other state lawmakers in a ceremony at the State House in Columbia. April 23 through 29 is National Volunteer Week. (State Representatives Bruce Bannister of Greenville and Ben Hagood of Charleston are pictured in the background).

Spartanburg resident Janette Gianopoulos was recently honored for her volunteer work with the Lt. Governor's Office on Aging Volunteer Ombudsman program by Lt. Governor Bauer and State Representative Harold Mitchell, Jr. in a ceremony at the State House in Columbia. April 23 through 29 is National Volunteer Week.

Eastover resident Carolyn Briggs was recently honored for her volunteer work with the Lt. Governor's Office on Aging Volunteer Ombudsman program by Lt. Governor Bauer and State Rep. Jimmy Bales in a ceremony at the State House in Columbia. April 23 through 29 is National Volunteer Week. (State Representatives Nikki Haley of Lexington, Bruce Bannister of Greenville and Ben Hagood of Charleston are pictured in the background).

Chapin resident Jane Duke was recently honored for her volunteer work with the Lt. Governor's Office on Aging Volunteer Ombudsman program by Lt. Governor Bauer and other lawmakers in a ceremony at the State House in Columbia. April 23 through 29 is National Volunteer Week. (State Representatives Harold Mitchell Jr. of Greenville, Nikki Haley of Lexington, Bruce Bannister of Greenville and Ben Hagood of Charleston are pictured in the background).

Mt. Pleasant residents Eddie Adair and Beverly Peake were recently honored for their volunteer work with the Lt. Governor's Office on Aging Volunteer Ombudsman program by Lt. Governor Bauer and other state lawmakers in a ceremony at the State House in Columbia. April 23 through 29 is National Volunteer Week. (State Representatives Bruce Bannister of Greenville and Ben Hagood of Charleston are pictured in the background). North Charleston Volunteer Don Nottingham was unable to attend the ceremony.

Community volunteers and staff from the state's Volunteer Long Term Care Ombudsman program (including Walhalla Mayor Lamar Bailes, foreground) listen intently as Greenville Representative Bruce Bannister commends their efforts from the floor of the South Carolina House of Representatives on Tuesday, April 18.

